Making the Case for Price & Cost Transparency ............ (slides provided separately)

Welcome and Opening Remarks

Craig Freshley, facilitator, greeted the group and explained a little bit about the meeting and about his role:

- I was hired as a neutral facilitator for this MHDO Consumer Advisory Group
- TODAY we are the MHDO Consumer Advisory Group
• Members also serve as an advisory group for Quality Counts, but for this meeting we are advising MHDO
• We will be giving advice to MHDO staff. MHDO is working with consultants to build a new website that will provide cost and quality data to consumers and anyone else who is interested.
• We want your advice on how to make the website better
• The meeting notes will serve as a record of advice we are giving to MHDO about cost and transparency.

Karynlee Harrington, Acting Executive Director of MHDO, also welcomed the group and thanked everyone for being here and taking time from your schedules to do this work with us.

Everyone introduced themselves.

Operating Guidelines and Member Engagement

Craig presented the Operating Guidelines for this MHDO Consumer Advisory Council (See Appendix), making the following remarks:

• These are the guidelines we intend to use to guide our work together
• The purpose of this group is not to make any final decisions but to provide advice and guidance to MHDO.
• MHDO is also getting advice from other places and may not be able to act on every single thing that they hear.
• Sometimes we will have an occasion to make a decision, such as what our recommendations should be? We have some guidelines around our decision making.
• We will end every meeting with a look ahead to the next meeting and an evaluation of the meeting we just had.

Craig explained a few ground rules for our meetings:

• Give input in the best interest of the overall effort.
• Accept that all suggestions might not be feasible and others may have different suggestions.
• Honor the schedule and the operating guidelines. It’s a pretty quick schedule. We have a lot to get done in a certain amount of time. We have thought a lot about what input needs to be given at what amount of time.
• If you share information by email between meetings, please share with the whole group.
• If you have any questions about the process, the schedule, or the materials, ask Craig and Kerri. We are available to you for phone conversations or even meetings.
Poppy Arford is serving as a special liaison to the facilitators. She knows a lot about price transparency topics, and she is helping us plan the agendas.

The group approved these Operating Guidelines.

We also agreed on the following plan to assess and increase member attendance:

1. Our goal is to have 12-14 active, engaged members
2. Craig and Kerri will talk to the people not here today and assess their level of interest
3. Once we have a sense of the interest of the current members, we can decide if we think we should invite additional people
4. Before we invite any particular new members, we will ask the group if we should try to find representatives of particular populations

Road Map

Craig explained our “road map” (see Appendix), the schedule that explains what input is needed from the group, by when, in order to meet the Summer 2015 deadline for a revised HealthCost website.

• At these first two meetings, May and July, we are talking about cost information o At our next meeting we are going to be talking about prescription drug pricing information
• Then for September and November we are talking about quality information
  o We will learn about quality and some ideas for integrating quality indicators and cost indicators
• While we are talking about these things, MHDO is preparing a new website about cost. They plan to show that to us in January 2015.
• In March we will see an integrated version of the website that includes cost and quality information
• Then we start to wrap up and we talk about building awareness

There was a clarifying question about what “MONAHRQ” (in the road map document) stands for. It stands for “My Own Network - Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality”.

There was a request that we spell out acronyms in general, and it was agreed that that would be a good rule to follow.
Price Transparency for Patients

Poppy’s Presentation

Poppy Arford gave a brief overview of health care cost transparency (see slides attached separately). The following remarks were captured:

- Thanks to everyone for participating
- Anyone is invited to contact me with questions about cost transparency
- Two pieces of legislation just passed with triple-aim goals of healing, population health, and affordable care for all
- Health care spending growth is at a 10 year high; many Americans say it’s their top problem
- Medical bills are a leading cause of personal bankruptcy; 2 million people affected
- We WANT to pay for our care but many of us do not have the inability
- When I talk about price, I mean the price itself, regardless of who is paying
- When I talk about insurance, in general I mean all payors, but I will identify when I mean a particular payor
- Only those who are uninsured or those whose insurance doesn’t cover a particular service pay the full retail price
- Anyone who has private or public insurance will pay different prices, sometimes significantly less
  - For uninsured, the cost share is nearly 100% of the price
  - For the insured the cost share portion is determined by their benefit package
  - “Coinsurance” is your percentage of whatever the insurance company has negotiated on your behalf
  - “Copay” is a flat fee that you pay for a health care visit
- Where to go to get information:
  - Ask your providers - they are starting to make info available
    - The law now mandates that health care providers have to provide cost info for the most common tests and procedures, so you know when you walk in
  - Information must also be provided on the MHDO website
    - But we have to tell people about the website
    - We are heading in a transparency direction thanks to two new pieces of legislation
  - All the major health plans are beginning to provide some kind of cost compare tool - not yet great, but evolving
    - Anthem example: “Estimate Your Cost” website shows outrageous variance in price.
    - This shows out-of-pocket payment and negotiated prices within 25 miles.
- The September 2013 Consumer Information Subcommittee Report to the MHDO Board informed the Transparency Grant
  - This committee has done tons of research
The recommendations are to
- Expand and support the HealthCost website, which we are doing
- Designate a clearinghouse role - not just to provide info, but actually try to connect people with information
- Evaluate a potential awareness campaign
- There was a recent public dump of data about what CMS has paid providers for the past year
- Karynlee has a huge job of making data fit together - she does a great job

Questions and Discussion

- How did you come to a determination of cost and pricing? It seems like some doctors are just out there to make a buck.
  - Others determined the actual prices
  - MHDO simply receives data on claims paid
- Although this group is not concerned with how prices are determined, you the consumer can make more informed choices and the idea is that if there are folks charging unreasonable prices, consumers make choices with that in mind and the market will adjust
  - We can play a role in reducing the cost of own care
  - When you go to a mechanic, you want to know what they are going to charge
  - I want to see the facility charge, the cost of the meds. I’m going to shop around. And then I want to know about quality standards.
- It would be great if eventually at the MHDO website you can link to your own provider

HealthCost Interim Website Review

Karynlee’s Introductory Remarks

Karynlee provided some background HealthCost interim website:

- When you walk out of a doctor’s office, you want to know exactly what you are going to have to pay
- We also want to know how often a doctor has done a certain type of procedure, what the rate of infection is
- This is the kind of info we want to bring together
  - So you don’t have to navigate through dozens of websites
  - If you agree that this is important information
- A recent national report graded states on health care price information.
  - 45 of the 50 states received a failing grade.
  - Maine was one of 2 states that received a B. No one got an A.
We can always do better, but we need to recognize that we are lucky and we do have lots of information out there.

And, we are going to get to an A!

• Visits to the interim HealthCost website during one week in May o 150 hits
  o 60% from Maine
  o Use of this interim site is far higher than use of on previous version o We get calls from other states who want to develop something similar

• Survey on the HealthCost interim website
  o 11 responses
    - For half, their first visit to the site
    - Good indications that people are finding what they are looking for.
      - Those who can’t find info - that’s the group we want to serve.
    - Many indicated they were able to understand the info on the site
      - Key question: what’s missing and how can we make it understandable?
    - Even though it’s a small sample size, we think that even in a larger sample the results might be similar.
    - We are going to continue to encourage people to take this survey; we will be collecting data all the way up to the launch of the new website.

Karynlee showed the website on the screen and explained the various pages and features:

• Home page - intro of what’s available on this site
• Commonly asked questions and answers
• Resources page - links to health plans
• The Cost Compare tool
  o The essence of the site
  o Select a procedure and your zip code o You get a list of facilities who offer that procedure o Shows average total costs based on what has been reported to MHDO o List breaks down cost by professional component and by facility component
    - However, not all providers have professional-level and facility-level data.
  o All the categories are defined in the methodology section o You can sort however you want
    - For example, if you sort by lowest to highest price for a particular radiology procedure, you can see that the total is more than $2,000 at one place and $463 at another place
• This interim site shows cost information by facility.
  o At previous site we showed information by health plan - Anthem or Aetna for example, o Often there was not enough volume of data o Ultimately we want to go back to showing information by health plans o And we want to talk about adding MaineCare and Medicare, even though those payments are fixed and you might not have out of pocket costs
Summary of Suggested Improvements

The following is a summary of the top ideas for improvements suggested by the group:

1. Provide different types of information for patients and others. We are most interested in patients - defined as empowered, informed consumers.
2. Remove the provider-centric categories in the Cost Compare steps
3. Allow searching by code or by procedure, using patient-centered terminology
4. Add a way to search visually by part of the body
5. Make sure that behavioral/mental health services are among the choices
6. Add links to information about transportation options
7. Provide a way to see costs by insurance and by provider
8. Dress it up with some color

Discussion

• Getting more people to visit the interim site
  o For the site survey, we need more diverse participants. Encourage people of more ethnic diversity to visit the website and share ideas. Also inner city and homeless populations.
  o Also, contact the Maine Center on Deafness. They will put a link to this interim site on their website and get the word out to the deaf community.
• Customized information for patients, professionals, and others?
  o On the home page, should we add buttons where you can indicate if you are a consumer, policymaker, provider, etc.? Then you would get into a site that was designed specifically for that audience.
  o As long as anyone could get into any tab.
  o I want to know what the policymakers and providers are looking for, because I know that affects me.
  o Different needs are different. There are pathways for professionals and pathways for patients. We figure there are people going there for no other reason than to find out costs.
    ▪ This site is not just for patients
    ▪ We might not know the needs of other groups
    ▪ This consumer advisory group is supposed to provide input on how well it’s working for consumers/patients o Some hospitals and Federally Qualified Healthcare Centers (FQHCs) telling us that they are using this site because they heard from patients about expensive hospitals to which they were being referred ▪ We are hearing that they will try to refer to lower cost facilities o I like the idea of different buttons
  o I agree with the idea of information for professional and for consumers • Additional information to include o All this site shows is cost - we need to make sure that we are balancing cost with quality indicators o What if a patient can't afford a $2,000 procedure at Maine Med? How do they transfer to another place? What if we you can’t afford the transportation to get there? How is a patient able to access the lower cost services?
    ▪ Under “Distance to Facility” maybe you could click on each one and access information about public transportation ▪ Or whether there is an option for vehicle mileage reimbursement o The site should show different TYPES of MRIs and electric shock therapy ▪ Some providers do not tell you up front that they do not have the service you are looking for o Need to add MPI and more psychological procedures o Add some more color for people with sight issues
  o Add a link that clarifies mental, behavioral, etc. services and then the drop-down menu of codes o Add issues specific to kids and adolescents. If was told my kid needed psychiatric professional help I would want to be able to look it up. There are too many kids getting unnecessary testing, meds, procedures. This will help educate parents.
  o How does this site serve blind users o “Patient complexity” is not needed for the patient part. It’s too confusing - switch it to professional side.
  o Instead of have to flip back and forth for definitions, have definitions appear when you hover o Add ASL interpretation for the site itself, and alert entities about who gets an interpreter and who doesn’t • Change “patient” to “consumer”
  o The word patient divides us. As a consumer, I choose where I want to get my health care. It implies that I have a choice and I’m looking for information. A patient just gets told what to do.
  o If we use the word patient we should explain that we are trying to empower patients and that they have a choice. We should be very clear that we are not talking about patients in the traditional sense but empowered consumers. Educated, informed patients.
  o Medical facilities have had power over us all these years because we are uninformed
  o Maybe on the home page if you hover over buttons for “Patient” or “Professional” you could see a definition • Categories and finding your procedure o Break info into physical health and mental health, or psychiatric and mental o I got lost when trying to choose a procedure. How would I know which kind of MRI? I don’t know if the doctor is going to use dye.
    ▪ On the site it could it say “Ask your doctor for the code” and then you type it in
• Patient can ask for the code of the procedure, but the doctor doesn’t always know
• The provider might not even know which particular code your procedure will be until you get there (i.e. dye or no dye).
• Some insurance companies are moving away from codes for cost-compare tools o Additional categories to add ▪ MRDD, Dementia, Alzheimer’s
    ▪ Nursing home/ group home services
    ▪ Cardiac surgery ▪ Services addressing life-threatening situations - communicating with someone in a coma or a deaf person o Clarify what is meant by “Emergency Room” ▪ It’s there because there is so much misuse of the ER (for minor issues)
    ▪ This site is showing how much it costs to go to the ER if you don’t really need to go there o I am not a fan of these categories - they are provider-centric. There is not a lot of meaning to patients. The categories are not intuitive to patients. They don’t resonate.
  o Example of patient-centric information ▪ One word, like “x-ray”
    ▪ A basic idea of what you want ▪ Search for a description ▪ Or search for CPT code
  o I can’t find “colonoscopy” ▪ It’s under diagnostic
    ▪ We might need to keep these distinctions for Medicare - they need to know if a procedure is diagnostic, or preventative. Your doctor can tell you if it’s preventative.
    ▪ Not sure if we have to go with the actual technical terms used in the insurance company.
  o It should be that we can just write in “colon” or “colonoscopy” and everything related comes up o How about a picture of the body? Then you can click on what area you want to know more about - eyes, foot, etc. This might be helpful or less literate or English as Second Language participants.
  o Make it so you can search by code OR by a patient-centric phrase - whatever the patient is thinking of. Whatever YOU know about the procedure.
  o Even if you don’t have an exact CPT code - the site should tell the user that “we still have something for you” • Zip code
  o Seems fine
  o Found it very easy to use o Clarify that you don’t have to use it o Add info about transportation. Is there a bus service?
• Or maybe just a link to the METRO or the Explorer. It’s too much for the MHDO site to keep up with all the transportation information.

• Insurance-specific information
  o What about adding Medicare, Mainecare, and uninsured - would you begin by identifying your insurance company?
  o Law requires us to break it down by insurance provider types - the cost really is different.
  o Yes, that would be good, because you can see others’ rates. This gives the patient the option to ask questions and maybe go to a competitor.
  o Yes, it seems useful to me to know my costs, but actually I’d like to see at the end that it varies and see all the different types. It’s empowering to see the range of prices offered to other people.
  o Hospitals now have to charge uninsured patients the average negotiated rate.
  o Yes, we would like to see cost by insurance company, but later towards the end, not at the beginning. Start with the procedure. I want to see how much it will cost for my problem to be fixed. Then later on in the process, the cost of MY type of insurance.
  o Or it could be that during the first step, you select the category of coverage or insurance, and “statewide average” would just be one of the choices
  o You want to be able to see the cost for you, for others, and the statewide average
